

ABSTRACT

5 A method of producing a sample of a treatment outcome on a textile specimen is described. The textile specimen in the form of a web section along its full production width is provided with a leader on one end located in the longitudinal direction of the web section, and a trailer at the other end. The specimen is passed through a treatment medium in a production installation for treatment in the direction of feed.